

STANFORD SCIENTISTS FOR PEACE

To encourage our society to find a more reasonable basis for our foreign policy than military force, we, as members of the scientific community at Stanford, declare:

- (a) that we must be responsible for the uses to which our talents are put;
- (b) that this responsibility forbids our participation in this cruel war;
- (c) that we will not participate in research or development of weapons of war or war support systems.

The statement given above is the view of Stanford Scientists for Peace. If you substantially agree with the statement, we invite your signature. The statement and signatures will be published periodically in the Stanford Daily and possibly in local papers, finances permitting.

A major goal of SSP is to help scientists become and remain aware of the impact of their technical work on this society. From time to time, SSP will sponsor speakers, seminars, and articles which are addressed to problems in this general area.
