

STANFORD SITS IN WAY?

Stanford University students and faculty find themselves in an institution of vast resources whose priorities place destruction and war before human lives and needs. Much of the research done at Stanford results in suffering and death just as many of the corporations in the Stanford Industrial Park deal in products of destruction and war placing profits before social needs.

It is no accident that the University and the Industrial Park share more than the name Stanford. The same men who control the University also direct your corporations: Charles Duccomon--Lockheed, Bill Hewlett--Hewlett-Packard, Ernest Arbuckle--Utah Mining and Construction (they make most of the B-52 bases in Thailand used to bomb Vietnamese), and others.

By sitting in we are taking a stand saying no to death and yes to life. We are saying it is time to accept responsibility for the institution we participate in. It is time we take an active hand in shaping and controlling the institutions that now shape and control our lives and those of others. It is time that we redirect those institutions away from destructive activity toward socially productive work. This is what we are asking.

We need your support and help. Talk with your friends, write letters to your local paper, and most of all come on-over and talk with us at AEL.
