

Dear Dave and Bill,

According to Stanford Engineering News, November 1966, the Applied Electronics Laboratory was completed in 1957. It was a gift from David Packard (Stanford '34) and William Hewlett (Stanford '34). Thank you.

"We surely wouldn't put at issue
What Hewlett makes at FMC
The only problem that disturbs us
Is Hewlett's credibility
The nerve gas was it classified?
So Bill felt safe the day he lied
The army got supplied, and
So we mind(yea yea yea).

"It isn't nice for Dave to tell us
The yellow peril's soon upon our shore
It isn't nice for him to use Panofsky
(I bet he still is sweating through our pores)
He makes the lies about ABM
'Before they get us boys, we'll get them.'
Our Dage's a 'fascist gem'
And so we mind(yea yea yea)"

The credibility gap between you and us widens daily.

Your support of and action on our demands would be appreciated greatly and would narrow it considerably.

Yours truly,

The April 3rd Coalition
