An Exorcism of Demon Dillingham

and

A Consecration of the Land for the People

A deadly spirit stalks our community, seeking a bog or a pasture to call his domain. The demon Dillingham, born of the forces of darkness, casts his cruel shadow over our lands. But the spirits of the people are rising up to challenge the invading infidel. The spirits of the past mingle with the present. The Costanoans who were driven from the land move among us, and we make common cause against the powerful demons.

We are gathering at high noon on St. Patrick's Day to exorcise the demons from the proposed site of Palo Alto Square, and to consecrate the land for the people. We will assemble at the corner of Page Mill and Hanover in the Industrial Park, and then march in an appropriately somber procession to the site. There an ecumenical trio will lead us in a liturgy and exorcism which shall presage the victory of the forces of light over the dark works of the profiteers.

We ask you to wear a costume appropriate to this unique event if you can.
