Students lick (mental) wounds

By MYRON MYERS

Twenty-five students loitered around a meeting room at Stern Hall on the Stanford University campus Friday night and licked their wounds.

The injuries were mental. Only one girl complained of being hit, a minor blow on an elbow.

The students were angry, frustrated and hurt. Many were freshmen, and the blockade of El Camino Real in the after-

200 arrested Crowd blocks Camino Real

More than 200 protesters were arrested Friday afternoon after they marched off the Stanford University campus to "take El Camino," capping the biggest antiwar rally of the day across the nation.

Traffic on the main thoroughfare separating Palo Alto from the campus was blocked at least partially for 2½ hours.

Two officers and at least two demonstrators were injured, none apparently seriously. Stanford University Hospital reported only one person had been treated there after the incident.

The blockading of El Camino Real and resultant mass arrests climaxed a day-long series of protests at Stanford against U.S. participation in the Indochina war. Seventeen people had been arrested earlier on the campus. Pickets had attempted to promote a student strike, and some classes were canceled or poorly attended.

Calm settled over the campus after the sweep by 169 officers along El Camino in the afternoon. The only announced protest activity for today was a car pool to take demonstrators to a rally at Kezar Stadium in San Francisco.

The processing of prisoners was completed by early this the rest looked on from a distance.

Deputies arrived at 2 p.m. Five minutes later about 25 charged up the Encina steps.

The protesters fled, some into the building.

Two people were arrested, Jens Christiansen, 28, a graduate student, for resisting arrest and assault and battery; and Grant Thompson, 20, not a student, for trespassing.

Two wounded Vietnam War veterans in wheel chairs led a march to San Francisco's Kezar Stadium today, starting a demonstration protesting war escalation in Southeast Asia.

Police estimated more than 5,000 protesters in the assembly area in the Golden Gate Park Parkhandie when the march moved off at 10:30 a.m.

Immediately following the men in wheel chairs were dozens of Vietnam veterans carrying banners and posters.

One poster read: "NIX ON WAR."

SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces killed about 100 Montagnard tribesmen, including women and children, in a revenge slaughter at a remote central highlands village, the South Vietnamese 2nd Corps headquarters said today.

Spokesmen said a government ranger battalion found the victims' bodies on Friday after driving North Vietnamese forces from two of three frontier hamlets in Dak Pek Camp bordering Laos.

Spokesmen said 28 victims had been killed with knives by North Vietnamese and Communist Montagnard forces for cooperating with the Saigon government.

Reports reaching other channels in Saigon said only that an unknown number of civilians had been killed by

The students were angry, frustrated and hurt. Many were freshmen, and the blockade of El Camino Real in the afternoon had been their first protest confrontation with riot police.

They had escaped arrest, but some of their friends were not so lucky. Officers booked some 200 people for obstructing a public thoroughfare.

The police had not been gruff, and the students felt the rules were somehow being broken. The righteousness of their cause should have won milder reprimand.

Twenty-five deputies had charged a riot in at Encina Hall earlier in the afternoon without a loud order to disperse.

"They always gave a warning before," a cood complained. "We thought they'd give us a chance to get out of the way."

Several people acknowledged they were aware they were engaging in an illegal activity. But they insisted this was beside the point.

The students were unanimous that some officers had broken discipline, used more force than needed to make arrests.

Their leader, Ken Zwick, a freshman from Huntington Beach, said he was willing to call it "inurrection."

Zwick said he had sought help from influential relatives: lawyers; Palo Alto Mayor Kirk Constock; and

Nixon at Camp David

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is spending the weekend at his mountain-top retreat at Camp David, Md., relaxing with his family and conferring with aides on the recent step-up in the Vietnam war and about domestic and legislative matters.

The arm of the law

This demonstrator was arrested for knocking down a policeman at the block-in on El Camino Real in Palo Alto.

List of those arrested in disorder

The 285 persons arrested Friday at El Camino Real and Embarcadero Road—nearly all charged with blocking a highway, a misdemeanor—were 125 men, 41 women and 37 juveniles between 13 and 17 years old, most of them 15.

Three of the men were arrested for assault on police officers, a felony. All 285 were released on their own recognizance after being booked into North County Courthouse in Palo Alto.

One of the men Paul David Stutz, 23, 2321 Harvard St., Palo Alto, was charged with five counts of assault with a deadly weapon on police officers, one count of battery on a police officer and one count of resisting arrest.

The other two men, both charged with one count each of assault on a police officer, were Christopher Rables

Gray, 18, Crothers Hall, Stanford, and Christopher Lucallas Murray, 18, Larkin House, Stanford.

Police did not release the names of the juveniles arrested, in compliance with a recent court ruling restricting information released on juveniles.

Others arrested, all charged with section 647 of the state Penal Code of "wilful or malicious obstruction of a street or sidewalk," include:

and Communist Montagnard forces for cooperating with the Saigon government.

Reports resulting other channels in Saigon said only that an unknown number of civilians had been killed by the enemy. The South Vietnamese 2nd Corps report was issued in Pleiku.

U.S. sources in Pleiku said they heard a report of Montagnards getting their throats slit but said they did not know the actual toll.

SAIGON (AP)—North Vietnamese forces surged forward ominously in the central highlands today, attacking bases and cutting the main highway linking the two major cities, Kontum and Pleiku.

The enemy cut Highway 14 about 13 miles north of Pleiku, halfway to Kontum, and halted a 100-truck convoy. Enemy troops dug in along the highway pounded the convoy with mortar and recoilless rifle fire. At dusk the convoy was still under fire.

This followed an enemy pattern of cutting roads apparently to strangle the major cities before launching the offensive that U.S. officers have been saying is imminent.

U.S. advisors believe that if the North Vietnamese launch a maximum effort they will try to cut the road between Kontum and Pleiku permanently, knock out the district town of Dak To and rush past government fire bases to seize Kontum.

A minimum effort, the advisors feel, would be to cut Highway 14 in many places and attempt to choke off Dak To and Kontum, 25 miles to the south.

On April 9, the North Vietnamese cut Highway 19, the major route between Pleiku and coastal bases over which 300 or so South Vietnamese trucks passed daily.

This forced the South Viet-

In Los Angeles an estimated 6,000 persons gathered for a march to MacArthur Park for a four-hour rally.

The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, led the Los Angeles march.

Demonstrations were staged on more than a dozen California College campuses where speakers urged participation in the Saturday marches.

Actress Jane Fonda and comedian-activist Dick Gregory were the featured speakers at the Kezar Stadium rally.

Many schools said most students ignored a planned boycott and attended classes.

At UCLA, Anthony Russo, indicted for conspiracy in the release of the secret Pentagon Papers, told about 1,000 persons at a noon rally Friday that the U.S. bombing was "a continuation of the most frightening and insidious terrorist of armaments ever thrown against helpless civilians."

In San Diego, five men were arrested for failing to disperse at a Navy supply center following a demonstration.

Mental tests due

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Additional psychiatric tests have been ordered for Stanley H. Speck, a Stanford graduate accused of hijacking a Pacific Southwest Airlines jetliner from Oakland to San Diego.

Brief terror spree in Missouri town leaves 3 dead, 4 wounded

HARRISONVILLE, Mo. (AP) — A curfew was placed on this community of 5,000 after a young man shot up the city square with an M1 carbine, killing two policemen, wounding a sheriff and three other persons then killing himself.

Charles R. Simpson, 24, of nearby Holden, Mo., staged the five-minute terror spree Friday evening.

The slain policemen were Donald Marler, 26, father of one child and an officer one year, and Francis Wirt, 24, on the police force less than a month after Army duty in Vietnam. Wirt was single.

Witnesses said the long-haired Simpson, wearing old Army fatigues, cut down the two policemen with a burst of rifle fire in the back as they walked in front of Allen Bank & Trust Co.

Darting into the bank, Simpson sprayed it with bullets, inflicting superficial wounds on two employes, Deborah Roach and Mary Stewart.

Simpson ran past a cleaning shop and a burst of gunfire brought down Orville Allen, a delivery man in his 50s.

Wounded in the chest and right leg, Allen was in critical condition.

Dashing on to the sheriff's office, Simpson fired two shots through a window into the living quarters of Sheriff Bill Gough, who was hit in the right shoulder and right leg while eating dinner. Gough's condition was listed as good.

Simpson ran back toward the square and shot himself. More than 100 rifle cartridges were found in his pockets.

The City Council immediately imposed a curfew from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. while police and other officers from all cities in Cass County, about 50 reserve sheriff's officers and FBI agents from Kansas City were called in. Police at first thought there was an effort to rob the bank.

Harrisonville has about 5,000 residents and is 15 miles south of the Kansas City limits.

"This is a small town and a terrible thing has happened," said Nelson Allen, assistant city counselor. "The City Council thought it best just to keep people off the streets to assure them that things are going to be all right."

Councilmen said several young persons moved into town this spring and formed at least two communes, but the only problem with them was loitering.

Eight youths were arrested after a minor disturbance on the square Thursday night.

Allen said Simpson was not one of those arrested.

"There is no evidence of a conspiracy or of anybody else being involved in the assassination of the officers," Allen said. He declined to reveal whether Marler and Wirt were involved in the arrests Thursday night.

At Holden, Police Chief Albert Wakeman said Simpson had been in trouble frequently, mostly traffic violations with his motorcycle.

"He seemed to get quite a kick out of trying to upset things around town with his motorcycle," Wakeman said.

"He seemed to be in with the militant people—the younger group that was turned this way. He was very belligerent toward police or authority."

The police chief said Simpson frequently called him "pig" and "he got a little stronger at times."

"He believed he was always getting the short end of the stick," Wakeman said. "He always had the feeling that he was being picked on."

The chief said Simpson had been in a few fights when younger, but nothing serious.

Wakeman said he never had seen Simpson with a rifle.

(AP) — Apollo 16's explorers, already possessors of two scientifically intriguing white rocks, drove their moon buggy halfway up Stone Mountain today in their quest for volcanic remnants and ancient rocks.

John W. Young skillfully guided the moon car over a ridge, through a series of boulder fields and up the 10 degree mountain slope to reach the major geology goal of the mission.

"Here, let's stop here," Charles M. Duke Jr. called out as he spotted Crown crater, about 750 to 800 feet up the 1,690-foot peak.

"What a spectacular sight!" Duke exclaimed as Young parked the battery-powered car in a shallow crater on a mountain terrace.

"Man, you can't believe the view looking back to the east!" he exclaimed. "You can see Ravine, and Wreck and North Ray and Subby. You can see the LM (Lunar Lander) back there. It's super."

They turned on a television camera that enabled viewers in Mission Control to share the exciting view.

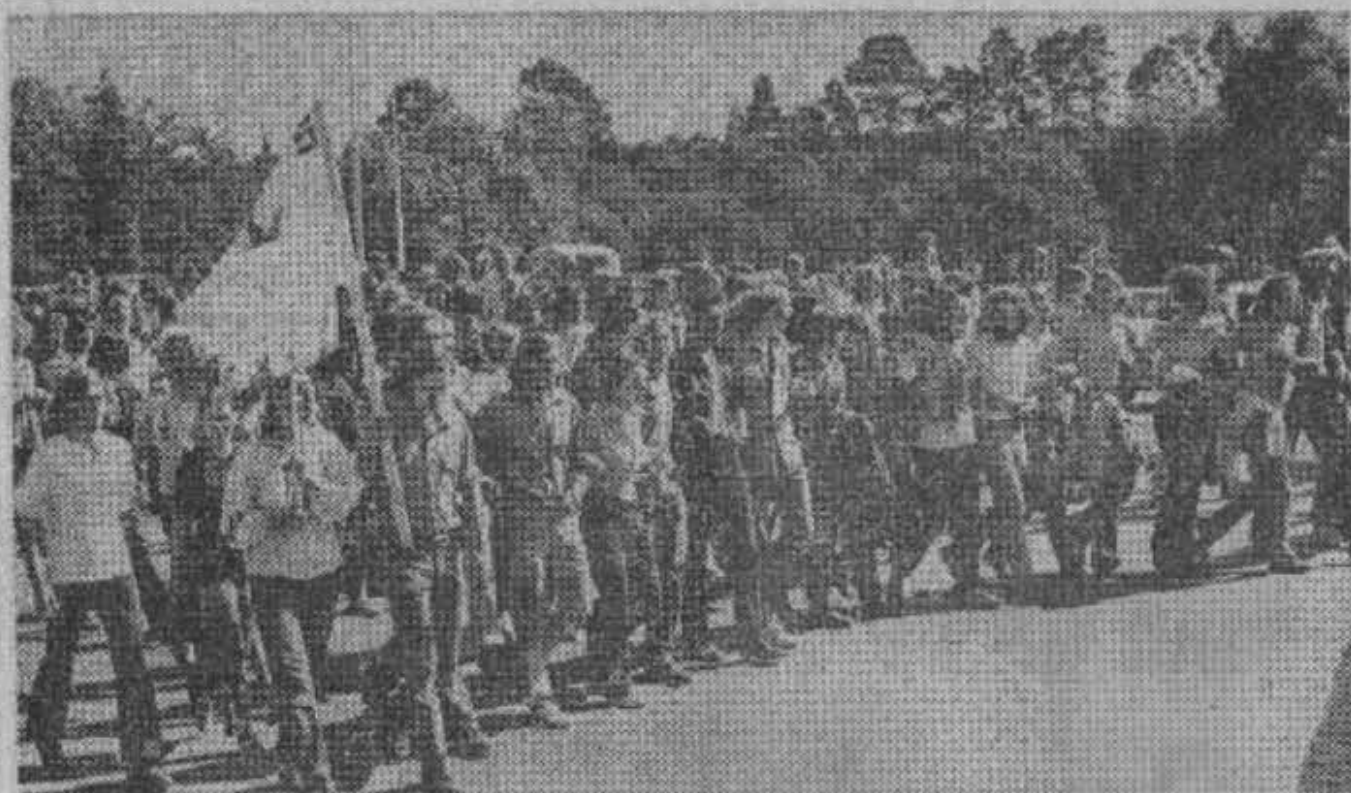

Young and Duke immediately set about their scientific task, collecting soil samples, taking photographs and relaying descriptions to scientists in Mission Control.

The slope of Stone Mountain was the No. 1 geology priority of Apollo 16. Most scientists believe it was formed by a thick volcanic lava flow during the convulsive formative years of the moon.

They planned to spend several hours on the mountain, sampling various levels for different types of rocks.

After Survey, he reported "We're up to about 8 clicks (5 m.p.h.) now" as the landscape smoothed again.

Here's what started the mass arrests graduate school of business and decided to march to the corner of Embarcadero Road and El Camino Real and block traffic. They marched on Galvez Street to El Camino, turned north and eventually reached Stickney's restaurant in the Town & Country Center.

Sheriff's Lt. Don Tamm announced from a truck loud-speaker the assembly was illegal and ordered participants to disperse.

Officers in riot gear marched into the crowd, broke it into two groups and attempted to surround as many people as they could. Other officers waited in reserve.

Most of the protesters scattered and escaped. Many ran across El Camino toward the Stanford campus and jammed up against a rose-covered wire mesh fence. The fence eventually was flattened by people scrambling over it.

Some of the crowd returned to the downed fence to throw rocks at officers guarding prisoners waiting for buses. Capt. W. E. Johnson of the sheriff's department was struck on the head by a large rock. He went down, dazed, but his helmet apparently prevented serious injury.

One protester, bleeding on the face, was hustled away in a patrol car.

The injury reportedly occurred when a group of officers from Santa Clara attempted to arrest a young man, so far identified only as a "law student" in the shopping center parking lot. Officers reported he resisted arrest and was struck in the jaw by a police baton, opening a gash and knocking out two teeth.

Officers said they didn't wait for an ambulance because the man started to convulse and they didn't want the crowd to be further incited by seeing blood.

Palo Alto Officer Robert Montez was called over by the Santa Clara officers and asked to take the man to the hospital, which he did.

The man was treated at the hospital, but the Santa Clara officers did not tell Montez they wanted to have him arrested for obstructing an officer and resisting arrest, so he was released from the hospital after treatment, police said.

had gone to fetch a shopper who had gone into convulsions away from the scene.

Besides Palo Alto policemen at the scene, Zurcher said, there were officers from the Santa Clara and San Mateo county sheriff's departments; the Sunnyvale, Santa Clara, Mountain View, Los Gatos, Campbell, Atherton, Redwood City, Belmont and Daly City departments; and the California Highway Patrol.

Protester picks wrong auto for getaway

One man who allegedly heaved a large rock through a police vehicle window on Friday afternoon picked the wrong getaway car.

The car's two occupants were undercover Palo Alto police officers wearing scruffy-appearing garb.

The officers reported they saw a young man throw a rock through the police vehicle window, in the 500 block of El Camino Real, then start hitchhiking about 3:15 p.m.

They pulled over, opened the back door of their old car and asked where he was headed.

"Just out of here," he said, then boasted: "I just smashed a pig's window," the officers reported.

The officers headed toward the police station, while one turned around in the seat and told the man they were officers and he was under arrest.

The man was identified as Mark Allen Thompson, 22, of 814 Marengo Ave., Palo Alto. He was released on a citation for malicious mischief.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — An anchor from the sunken battleship Arizona, one of the casualties of Japan's assault on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, is enroute to the state of Arizona where it will be made a memorial to the ship and its men.

The 19,000-pound anchor was to arrive in San Diego today.

Stolen kiss, 4-car crash leads to home-fire rescue

By NED MacKAY

A teen-aged couple's stolen kiss resulted in a four-car crash early this morning, but it also placed an Atherton policeman near a burning house in time to rescue the occupants.

The officer, George Barrow, 33, gave this account of the circumstances:

Barrow responded at 2:15 a.m. to a reported auto accident at the intersection of Glenwood and Laurel Avenues. There he found the driver, Joseph McMorrow, 18, of 1240 Bellair Way, Menlo Park, and his girl friend, Lorraine Walker, 17, of 80 Lorelei Way, Menlo Park.

McMorrow told Barrow that he had tried to kiss Miss Walker while driving his auto east down Glenwood, but had lost control of the car and hit three parked unoccupied vehicles.

Barrow said that McMorrow's car and one of the parked cars were totally wrecked. The other two parked cars suffered minor damage.

Walker's home was in the Lorelei Manor subdivision, and while driving there Barrow noticed a column of smoke.

He traced it to the Larry Rogers residence at 55 Calise Lane, Menlo Park. When he arrived the garage was aflame and smoke was billowing 200 feet into the air.

Barrow radioed to the fire department, then rung the front doorbell. It didn't work. He broke a small window with his flashlight, then reached in and opened the door from inside.

"My first thought was, 'Get, I hope he doesn't think I'm a burglar and shoot me,'" Barrow said.

The living room was filled with smoke. Barrow found the master bedroom and awakened Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, who were sound asleep. He also awakened their two young sons, who were sleeping in separate rooms. The family paused for a minute to find the dog, and then Barrow led them out.

Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Pierola Valley. He said he is taking accounts from witnesses and trying to gather photographic evidence.

"If I get enough documentation," Zwick said, "I'm going to take it to Chief (James) Zurcher and the Palo Alto City Council."

"Depending on what happens, we may take it to court. I'm not optimistic about getting any individual policeman on a misconduct charge, but I'm trying to bring this out as an issue before the public."

Zwick appeared to be the only one in the room who had not participated in the confrontations. He has been active in other antiwar activities, he said.

"I'm not a radical," Zwick said. "I don't believe that all policemen are pigs and we should get rid of them." He took up the cause, he said, after hearing friends complain of the treatment they received.

Area Deaths John Nash

John P. Nash of Woodside, a vice president of Lockheed Missiles and Space Co., died Friday afternoon at Cape Canaveral Hospital in Florida. He was 57 years old.

Nash had been at Cape Kennedy to participate in the launching of the Apollo 16 moon mission. He was assistant general manager of Lockheed's Space Systems Division in Sunnyvale.

Nash collapsed from unknown causes while at dinner on April 15. He remained in a coma at the hospital until his death.

He was a 1936 cum laude

He has been active in other antiwar activities, he said.

"I'm not a radical," Zwick said. "I don't believe that all policemen are pigs and we should get rid of them." He took up the cause, he said, after hearing friends complain of the treatment they received.

Rick Foreman, another freshman, said a sheriff's patrol car with flashing light ran him and friends off a campus bike trail as they walked home from the El Camino demonstration.

"I heard people running and shouting behind me," he said. "Then I saw the car come ripping down the path. I jumped out of the way, but it still came at me. I dove behind a tree, and the car missed me by five feet. It chased some other people before driving away. The deputies made no attempt to arrest anyone."

Foreman's story could not be verified with the sheriff's office this morning. "I have no knowledge of any incident like that at all," Lt. Donald Tamm said.

Lt. Ken Hart, the sheriff's watch commander, also denied knowledge of the incident.

Several people claimed they were herded into the wire mesh fence along El Camino flanking on the campus boundary by officers and forced to scramble over it. They claimed officers poked and struck people on the outside of the crowd with clubs and yelled for them to jump over. One girl cut her hands, they said.

Stanford University Hospital reported no one treated there for injuries after the trouble. The student health center refuses to say if it treated anyone.

Zurcher, who directed the arrests, was adamant that people who crowded against the fence went there of their own accord. "If there was any pushing or herding," he said, "it was by people on the outside of the crowd trying to get away."

Three students claimed they were being "radicalized" by police activities.

Asked if she meant she was completely transforming her political philosophy over the incident, one girl replied "I'm losing my faith in the police, in the Establishment."

Parley slated on airport pollution

SAN FRANCISCO INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT—A national conference examining airport environmental problems is scheduled to begin Monday at the Hilton Inn here.

Special panel meetings with speakers from governmental agencies and the airline industry will discuss aircraft noise regulations, land use planning, assessment of environmental studies, airport pollution control problems, the federal environmental review process, and aircraft noise monitoring.

The two-day conference is sponsored by the Airport Operators Council International.

Woodside fund

Woodside High School students have established a $1,000 memorial scholarship fund for former Principal Willard D. Bradley and are requesting that their football field be named after Bradley, who committed suicide Sunday.

Student memorial services for Bradley, who had been Woodside's principal since the school opened in 1959, were held Friday in the school gym.

Bradley, of 808 Elm St., San Carlos, quit as principal after the first of two heart attacks he suffered. His wife, Lorraine, said he had been dependent on the medicine.

to participate in the launching of the Apollo 16 moon mission. He was assistant general manager of Lockheed's Space Systems Division in Sunnyvale.

Nash collapsed from unknown causes while at dinner on April 15. He remained in a coma at the hospital until his death.

He was a 1936 cum laude graduate in mathematics from the University of California, Berkeley. He obtained his master's degree and doctorate in mathematics from Rice University, Houston, Tex.

Nash joined Lockheed in 1957 as manager of information processing, and subsequently was associate director of communications and controls research, and director of research for the company, heading the research laboratories in Palo Alto.

In 1963 he was named vice president for research and engineering. He later became vice president and assistant general manager of the research and development division. In 1968 he became vice president and assistant general manager of the Space Systems Division.

He lived with his wife, Dorothy, and a son, John, at 155 Sunrise Drive, Woodside. His two other sons are William of Salt Lake City and Keith of Palo Alto. Also surviving is a brother, W. P. Nash of Pasadena.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

Alta Officer Robert Montez was called over by the Santa Clara officers and asked to take the man to the hospital, which he did.

The man was treated at the hospital, but the Santa Clara officers did not tell Montez they wanted to have him arrested for obstructing an officer and resisting arrest, so he was released from the hospital after treatment, police reported today.

an Arizona anchor

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — An anchor from the sunken battleship Arizona, one of the casualties of Japan's assault on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, is enroute to the state of Arizona where it will be made a memorial to the ship and its men.

The 19,000-pound anchor was to arrive in San Diego today aboard the tank landing ship San Bernardino. It will be unloaded Monday and then transported to Arizona.

McMorrow told Barrow that he had tried to kiss Miss Walker while driving his auto east down Glorwood, but had lost control of the car and hit three parked unoccupied vehicles.

Barrow said that McMorrow's car and one of the parked cars were totally wrecked. The other two parked cars suffered minor damage. Neither youth was injured.

Barrow offered the couple a ride to their homes. Miss

The living room was filled with smoke. Barrow found the master bedroom and awakened Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, who were sound asleep. He also awakened their two young sons, who were sleeping in separate rooms. The family paused for a minute to find the dog, and then Barrow led them out.

After the fire was out, Barrow took Miss Walker and McMorrow home. McMorrow was not cited.
